THE CONFEDERATE DEAD NEAR AVERTSBORO', NORTH CAROLINA.

Mr. Editor: Several months ago I made known to you and the numerous readers of the News a proposition of Mrs. Smith, and other ladies of North Carolina, to have all the Confederates who foll in battle near Averysboto's ad still lay baried where they fell, taken up and reinterred in one common cometery, to be properly enclosed, and tree have a suitable monument erected to their memory. This generous, patriotic lady offered to donate not only the ground, but to render all the assistance in her power to carry cut this landable object, and asked the aid aud co-operation of the ladies of South Carolina, as well as the relatives and friends of the deceased generally. As these troops were mostly from Charleston, where they had, for full four years, stood more invincible than walls of stone among the bravest of its brave defenders, never for a moment fultoring, even under the terrible shower of iron hall to which they were exposed from the opening fire on Fort Sumter to the pain-ful evacuation of the city, presenting themselves at all tunes as barriers between the innocent at all times as barriers between the innocent inmates within and their invetorate enemies without, until the order came from a quarter which they, as soldiers, were bound to obey, and thus, for the first time, turning their backs upon their homes and the many loved ones left behind, to still do battle for them in distant fields—I repeat it, as these were the troops who scaled with their life's blood their unswerving devotion to a came in blood their unswerving devotion to a cause in which Charleston fully sympathized, from the rising of its morning star to the going down there-of—I did hope that the reasonable request of the fair daughters of the Old North State—to do just, deserving and becoming homage to these noble martyrs—would receive a ready and willing response from their more Southern sisters. Nor can I helieve otherwise than that, when the ladies and citizens of Charleston learn, from the subjoined letter of Mrs. Smith, that the good people of North Carolina have performed the first and most disagreeable part of this very commendable work—that of collecting together the dead bodies—and now only want a few hundred dollars to complete the enclosure and monument, they, too, will readily contribute their part. It only requires some organized plan, with generous, patriotic ladies of Charleston at its head, to make this matter suc-

You may do much to aid the schome through the instrumentality of your paper, and by a little private advice. For the credit of the State; for what is due to the people of a sister State, who have so kindly initiated the matter; for what is due to the honor of the honored dead, let me invoke you, Mr. Editor, to urge on this work, so well begun, until the last remains of these late, long defenders of your city shall be properly enclosed with an iron fence, and an appropriate closed with an iron fence, and an appropriate monument shall be erected to mark their last fallen cause, their memory is none the less worthy of the homage of their country.

of the homage of their country.

In furtherance of these views, please publish the following letter from Mrs. Smill, at whose house, a few miles from Averysboro', the battle in which these men fell, was fought, on the 16th March, 1865. The most of the slain were of the two South Carolina Regiments of Regulars and Lucas' Battalion of Charleston—three only fr m

There are three Georgians, all the rest are South Carolinians; and, as we have moved them, we have no doubt but South Carolina will complete it if she knew of it, and Georgia, I have no doubt, would do her part. We have placed fifty-eight bodies in the cemetery. I will be very glad if you would aid us with your influence, and in any way you may feel disposed. I am very desirous that this matter should be generally taken hold of, and I think it is obliged to succeed. Our neighborhood have done what they felt able to do, and have done it cheerfully. I can assure you it is a very great relief to my mind to know that the graves of our noble martyrs are no longer scattered over the land, unknown and uncared for; and I believe there is still genuine patriotism enough left to secure to us the completion of this work. We have had them removed for ten miles around.

Investigating Committee, in New York and Drook-lyn, are said to be as wide-spread as startling. There has been a universal swindle going on, from the start, in which Government agents are deeply implicated. The excuse is, the "difficulty of findimplicated. The excuse is, the "difficulty of finding honest men" as Iuspectors! There is nothing singular in this fact.
